Don't Spend Another Valentine's Alone: New Book Helps Expand Dating Pool for Single Women

Greensboro, NC - Authenticity and transparency at its finest, author Sondra Wright shares a personal journey that will transform the heads and hearts of women everywhere. For those serious about finding a meaningful relationship, "When Mr. Wright Comes in the Wrong Package, Love Him from the Inside Out," is a liberating gift.

Love is about intuition. Too often intuition is ignored, and the mind proceeds down a path that the heart simply should not follow. Sondra Wright's dating advice for women is simple, "Renounce the trap of expectations, and free up your perceptions in favor of a love adventure that runs deeper than surface attraction..."

Angel Barrino, author of His Purpose My Praise, says, "I felt as though Sondra Wright had read my heart and my mind when she wrote this book. It helped me see a whole new perspective, and illustrated to me how not to shut the door on a good man."

"When Mr. Wright Comes in the Wrong Package, Love Him from the Inside Out" is a romantic thrill ride every woman can relate to. Ranging from disillusionment and heartbreak to resolve and self-preservation, and, alas, the internal struggle to see beyond oneself and ones preconceived notions to finally arrive at authentic, lasting love. As the chapters of her life unfold, in this deeply personal tale, Sondra vicariously guides her readers through an inconspicuous process which calls for and allows sincere self-examination.

"Prince Charming has ridden into the lives of many women, stood right before her eyes, and been completely ignored. Why? Because we are quick to prejudge. We prejudge based on a set of standards we expect men to live up to; standards they never have and likely never will," she says. "Instead of driving a 2013 Benz, he may ride behind the wheel of a '97 Impala, so we dismiss him, and later we brood, 'How did so and so end up with a great guy like that, and not me?!'"

Written in an honest, transparent, and light-hearted voice that connects on a very real level this book is an inspiring read that will change thousands of lives; one woman, one perspective, one relationship at a time. Prepare to nod in recognition, smile knowingly, and think deeply.

Sondra Wright is a speaker, writer and small business entrepreneur who lives in North Carolina with her husband, John. A self-professed personal development junkie, her passion is inspiring transformation through self-awareness, self-discovery, and innovative thinking.
